

Industry Veteran, John Maroney, to Join ForSight VISION5 as President and CEO

Company Completes $9.3MM Series B-1 Funding Round

MENLO PARK, Calif., June 17, 2013 /PRNewswire/ -- ForSight VISION5 is pleased to announce that John F. Maroney will join the company as President, CEO and Director of VISION5, and that the company has recently closed its Series B-1 round of funding. ForSight VISION5 is the fifth company created by Menlo Park ophthalmic incubator ForSight Labs. VISION5 is a clinical development stage company focused on unmet needs in ophthalmic diseases, initially ocular hypertension and glaucoma.

Since 2003, Mr. Maroney has served as a Managing Member of Delphi Ventures, a healthcare focused venture capital firm with more than $1.1B in capital raised across eight funds. Mr. Maroney will continue to serve as a Venture Partner for Delphi Ventures with responsibility for various portfolio companies. Prior to joining Delphi, Mr. Maroney was President, CEO and Chairman of EndoTex Interventional Systems, Inc. a development stage, venture backed, start-up company focused on commercialization of carotid artery stents. EndoTex was acquired by Boston Scientific Corp. in 2007. From 1988 to 1997, Mr. Maroney held a variety of senior management positions at Cardiovascular Imaging Systems (CVIS) and Boston Scientific including President of EP Technologies, Inc., and Vice President and General Manager for Cardiovascular Imaging Systems. While at CVIS, Mr. Maroney was a key member of the senior management team during the Company's IPO and eventual acquisition by Boston Scientific Corporation. Prior to CVIS, Mr. Maroney held increasingly responsible management roles at Abbott Laboratories via their acquisition of Oximetrix, Inc. Mr. Maroney also currently serves on the Advisory Boards for the College of Engineering and the Department of BioMedical Engineering at UC Davis.

Mr. Maroney said, "I am thrilled to join and lead the exciting team at ForSight VISION5 brought together by Angela Macfarlane around the technology pioneered by Dr. Eugene de Juan, Jr. MD. The investors are truly a world class group and I feel privileged to work with each of them."

Ms. Macfarlane said, "John's leadership, experience and deep understanding of how to build a powerful organization and drive a game-changing technology are a perfect fit for ForSight VISION5." Dr. de Juan added, "It is very satisfying to see an experienced team come together around a compelling technology addressing key clinical needs while focused on improved, cost effective patient outcomes."

ForSight VISION5 has also completed its Series B-1 financing which raised $9.3m and was led by Technology Partners of Palo Alto, California and joined by Delphi Ventures. Returning investors Morgenthaler Ventures and Versant Ventures also broadly supported the financing. Jim Glasheen, PhD, of Technology Partners joins the ForSight VISION5 Board of Directors. Dr. Glasheen commented "We are extremely excited about the VISION5 investment opportunity. The Company is targeting a compelling need for millions of patients in one of the key ophthalmic markets with the potential for impacting broader markets as the technology matures."
